My very dear friends:

As you so well know, my family suffered a monumental loss last January 17 1997, Superbowl day, at 5:39 AM we lost our home in a terrible fire that took everything we owned. The only thing that stood relatively unharmed was the foundation of the house. We later found out it was cracked and had to be repaired.

As we stood in the rain looking the flames all the way in the sky, I kept mumbling.. My computer, my livelihood!

At about 9 AM I asked a fireman to remove my computer from what used to be my office. He brought out a terrible burned out tower. I had been crying for hours, and the sight of my future in ruins was just too much to bear.

As we pondered what to do , an angel of a customer told me about One of my employees drove me there. I will never forget Hoover St. Upon arrival, they were kind, concerned and understanding. I used to back up in tape and paper, but it all went. I firmly believed no one could retrieve any data from that horrible mangled machine.

Everybody was honest and said they would try to help me. Hope crept in. The process of retrieving the hard disk and the data was long and so very delicate. It took 18 hours just for that. But to my amazement they not only retrieved all of my data and saved my life, but kindly answered all the myriad of questions I put to them every half hour. I return with any little glitch. Just left a printer there. I guess I will be going back there for life.

There is little joy after such devastation. The only beacon of hope was my brand new computer, monitor and keyboard, which has kept me above dark waters. We have been grateful, and will never buy ant hard or software without consulting with them.

Many thanks for you Dear God in Heaven
