Dear Joe,

I went to Ukraine this past summer to distribute Bibles and otherwise terrorize the country for Christ. Upon my return, I discovered that my hard drive had decided to shuffle off it's mortal coil. A year ago, I resigned my position as a top-producing agent with Prudential Real Estate and went into full time Christian youth work. Much of my ministry involves Bible teaching and the administration of an on-campus Christian club at a public middle school in East San Diego County under the auspices of Campus Life. Of course there was a whole lot of data in the form of letters, lesson plans and missions research on this drive. To compound the problem, when I went to restore the lost files from zip media, they were all blank!

Had it not been for your company, hundreds of hours of research, Bible study notes and correspondence records would have been irretrievably lost. I am so grateful to you and your organization for the surgery you were able to perform on my dead hard drive by pinpointing and extracting the useful stuff from among a gig or so of old real estate data that was of no further relevance.

I feel that I received the same professional courtesy and attention that your company probably gives it's best corporate customers. I would be happy to recommend Advanced Data Solutions to anyone else who wakes up and finds himself or herself bereft of their data as I did.

Gratefully yours,

Rusty Dearborn
